

THE CALEDONIAN.

LOCAL AND STATE ITEMS.

Vermont Brigade.

We suppose Smith's division is yet in Franklin's corps; we have seen no mention of transfer—if so we may expect that they were in the fight on Sunday, and we don't know how many battles since. We are not sure, but know that Brook's brigade will give a good account of itself wherever it is.

Some of our Prisoners Heard From.

Mr. Jacob Ide of Passumpsic has received a letter from his son Horace, of the Vt. Cavalry, in answer to the capture we noticed in the Caledonian several weeks ago. The letter dated Bull Isle, (an island in the Passumpsic river, near Richmond,) Aug. 24. He says he is with him there, Joseph O. Whitefield, C. F. Durlam of Concord, Joseph Hutchinson of St. Johnsbury, J. Carr of North Danville, and Lorenzo of Concord. Albert Kinnerson of St. Johnsbury died of typhoid fever. Young Ide has been well since taken, and that he gets pretty good food but not enough of it. He lives in hopes of an early exchange.

Diphtheria in Peacham.

We understand that since the 1st of April, we have been in this town about one hundred cases of this dreaded disease, which has been fatal in only six cases before the 14th of this month. The oldest resident physician in the place has treated about 80 cases of this disease and has lost three, all in one family—children of Mr. Winter, aged respectively 3, 8 and 11 years. Beside the hundred mentioned above, there have been several others having symptoms of the disease more decided. Why it has not been as fatal in Peacham as in some other places in the State may be owing to the locality, or to the treatment. We learn it still prevails in that town, and one, a daughter of Mr. Farwell, died this week. Others are reported as seriously sick.

An Unexpected Break.

We understand that the governor has discovered a law upon our statute which provides that the officers of the militia shall be appointed, and not appointed, and he has accordingly recalled the commissions issued to officers in the nine months regiments. This will be unexpected "slip up" to many who have their commissions already in their pockets, and to a great many more who have received their commissions, but whose hopes now depend mainly upon their success in "log-rolling" the soldiers.

State Fair.

The Vermont State fair was held at Rutland last week. From the accounts we see the papers we judge it was not a great success, though perhaps it could not be called a failure. Horace Greeley of the Tribune decried an address. Subject: "Agriculture in Vermont—past and future." Mr. Greeley gave a good card for the Society, about 500 people gathered in to hear him. The people of Vermont swear by the Tribune and hear its head ever speaks in the State the people all go to hear. Mr. Greeley talked not to the people in the evening, and then taking the midnight train, hastened away to his other engagements.

There was a wool-growers' convention held on the first day of the fair, and the display of good sheep and fine horses were the chief products of interest on exhibition.

State Military Items.

It is said that Major Sawyer, who has been recruiting for the cavalry regiment in this State, has enlisted 250 men. The Free Press learns that Col. Tompkins of the Vermont cavalry regiment, has resigned, and that his resignation has been accepted. Our cavalry regiment has poor luck with its recruits.

We see it stated that Major Proctor, who set out in the 3d as quartermaster, has been appointed colonel of the 13th regiment of 99 months. We have heretofore learned from private sources, that Major Proctor's health would not admit of his soldiering, but he is of interest to us in this way, as it is expected the company now drilling in this town will be in the 13th, although the men are very anxious to go in the 12th, with their steeled friend and neighbor, Col. Blunt.

The company of nine months men recruited in Danville, Hardwick and Walden, was organized at Danville, the 8th. The following officers were elected:

Captain—James M. Ayer, Danville.

2d Lt.—John B. Rogers, Walden.

The Free Press learns that Col. Ripley of Rutland, has been appointed colonel of one of the nine months regiments, probably the 10th, and that Capt. F. V. Randall of Montpelier, who is now in the 2d, has received the appointment of Lt. Colonel.

Temperance.

S. M. Hewitt lectured at Montpelier on Monday evening. When here in the summer he was partly promised to return this fall and give another lecture. We hope he is now on his way.

The Guildhall Kidnapping Case.—The Other Side.

We copied a paragraph from the Lancaster Republican last week, respecting some difficulty between Lancaster and Guildhall in regard to enlisting one Franklin Hicks. The ensuing communication comes to us with a request to publish, which we do, omitting some personalities. We think our New Hampshire neighbors should be just if not magnanimous to a town like Guildhall, where nearly every able-bodied man is obliged to go to war. We have no doubt they will

We state the facts to be as follows—and we can verify them by the affidavits of numerous respectable citizens of Vermont and N. H. viz:—

Franklin Hicks, the recruit in question, for a year and a half past, has resided in Guildhall, Vt., with his family. He has paid taxes and is a legal voter there, and but few days prior to the event in question was duly enrolled among the able-bodied militia of that town by the listers, preparatory to the anticipated draft of nine months men. On Monday, the 25th ult., said Hicks was at Lancaster, and after being liberally furnished with the ardent, was induced by Mr. E. R. Kent, recruiting officer, to enlist in the 5th N. H. regiment. At this time he had not moved or attempted to move from Guildhall. The next day, still stimulated by New Hampshire liquor, Hicks attempted to gather up his effects at Guildhall, and with his family skedaddle over the river. He did this expressly to avoid being drafted from Guildhall, according to his own admissions made repeatedly after becoming sober. While attempting to get into New Hampshire with his goods and chattels he was promptly arrested by deputy sheriff Meacham of Guildhall, for trying to leave the State pending the draft, and delivered into the custody of high sheriff Bell, of Lunenburg. By the latter Hicks was carried to St. Johnsbury, where the supreme court was in session, and the facts laid before Hon. Judges Poland and Kellogg, who at once decided that the town authorities of Guildhall might lawfully detain any of their enrolled militia who might be attempting to avoid the draft, until such time as their quota was filled. Therefore, Mr. Hicks at his own request was carried to the recruiting office at Guildhall where he voluntarily enlisted, being sober, too, and is now at Brattleboro.

Perhaps it may not be generally known that the quota of Guildhall, owing to some unaccountable blunder, which the town has vainly tried to have corrected, is 20 three years men, while she has but 46 men in all subject to do military duty. And only two men are credited to her, although a large number have gone from thence to the war.—Add to these the nine months men required and it will not seem strange at all why the citizens of Guildhall were anxious to prevent the abduction of their able-bodied men into N. H., or anywhere else.

It is true that Hicks slept in July Tuesday night, the 26th ult., but he was not put there until information deemed reliable had been received that a posse from Lancaster, headed by the man under whose auspices Hicks was induced to enlist in New Hampshire, was coming to Guildhall with the avowed purpose of forcibly rescuing him from the authorities there.

It is false that Hicks ever moved into Lancaster or attempted to do so until the day of his arrest, which was the next day after he had been "recruited" by Mr. E. R. Kent.

It is false that he was "impressed" into the Vermont service in any sense whatever. His enlistment at Guildhall was purely a voluntary matter. Respectfully yours,

SETH MEACHAM,
CHAS. E. BENTON,
H. W. BEDELL.

Farmers' Fair at Lyndon.

At a late meeting of the Executive committee of the Caledonia Farmers' Club it was decided to hold their third annual fair at Lyndon Centre on Wednesday, the 8th day of October next. It was proposed as a test question, that the fair be for the present postponed, as the great and all absorbing interest of the day was "War," which seemed to occupy and engross so exclusively the minds of the people, as to allow time for little else. But after a free and full consideration of the subject as it appeared to the several individuals representing nearly every corner of Northern Caledonia, the decision was unanimously in favor of holding a fair.

It is true our national affairs in many respects appear dark. Treason seems to hold its foothold, and is apparently successful for the time in its offensive operations. But a brighter day is dawning. The cloud will soon show a silver lining, and the darkness be swallowed up in the sunshine of a speedy Federal success. This is our faith. But be it so or not, it is for us to respond or neglect other important interests upon which our enjoyment and success as individuals and as a people to a greater or less extent depend. The agricultural prospects of the North are encouraging—bountiful yields are everywhere reported, and we have hope for ourselves, and our country's prosperity. It ever becomes us to be hopeful, and even cheerful, when in trying circumstances. If our colors have become soiled, torn or endangered, from whatever cause, so that "Hope" has to be written upon the staff, we'll not give up through fear or despondency, but fling them hopefully to the breeze, and enjoy the fullest confidence they are able to inspire.

The expenses, aside from the labor, attending the getting up of the exhibition will be but little, and the advantage to be derived from a real Farmer's Festival—a simple day devoted to the interests of the people will be valuable and enduring.

The people have but to come out and bring with them whatever they have that will be of interest to others, to render the fair successful. Let all feel an individual interest, and each do his part, and we shall have what we have had for two years past—a good exhibition. Let every farmer, every stock-grower bring out their teams—horses, cattle, and sheep; let there be a proper feeling and interest awakened in the minds of the people, and the result will be as heretofore—success!

(P.S.) The Ladies need no prompting; they are always on hand, as past experience has shown. Let them encourage their fathers, husbands and sons to do likewise!

The corporation of the University of Vt. held a meeting on Monday, September 9th. The principal business done was the election to the office of president of the university of Prof. Joseph Torrey, D. Dr. Torrey has been connected with the university since the year 1827; from that date till 1842, as professor of the Greek and Latin languages; and from 1842 till this time as professor of moral and intellectual philosophy.

D. W. Clark of Bennington, has invented a material for facing the common red brick which gives them the appearance of polished marble or pure porcelain. The brick is dipped into the preparation and then burnt for six hours, when the preparation becomes attached to the brick, as if it were part of the original, making the brick much stronger, and exceedingly beautiful in appearance.

A. H. Gray, a native of Dorset, is a conscript in the rebel army. He was at work for a man in Salisbury N. C., and forced into the ranks. But true to Vermont and his Green Mountain education, he longs to march under the broad folds of the stars and stripes; the last words he said to Capt. Bean, on his crossing the river, at his release, being: "I wish I could go with you."

Joel Page of Westminster celebrated his 50th anniversary of his wedding day on Saturday last, at 6 o'clock in the evening. There were present six children and thirteen grandchildren, besides numerous other friends and acquaintances, numbering some seventy-five in all. This venerable pair occupy the same house in which the bridegroom was born seventy-one years ago.

Marshall Baldwin arrested Anson Foster at Brighton on Tuesday last for carrying off soldiers who had enlisted and been sworn in and drawn their bounty. He was tried before U. S. Commissioner N. T. Sheafe and put under $2000 bonds to appear at the U. S. Court and for want thereof was put in jail at Rutland.

Gen Pope's Official Report.

Gen. Pope, in his official report of the recent battles in Virginia, severely censures the conduct of Fitz John Porter, but speaks in the highest terms of the zeal and energy of Gen. McDowell, Banks, Reno, Heintzelman, Hooker and Kearney.

He attributes the disaster of Saturday jointly to the bad conduct of Porter, and the failure of McDowell to send him supplies.—On this point he says:

I do not hesitate to say that if the corps of Franklin had attacked the enemy in flank, on the afternoon of Friday, as he had my rebels had stripped off his boots, which he had written order to, we should utterly have crushed Jackson before the forces under Lee could have reached him. Why he did not do so, I cannot understand. Our men, much worn down by hard service and continuous fighting for many previous days, and short of provisions, rested on their guns. Our horses had no forage for two days. I had telegraphed and written urgently for rations and forage to be sent us, but, on Saturday morning, before the action was resumed, I received a letter from General Franklin, written the day before at Alexandria, stating to me that he had been directed, by Gen. McClellan, to inform me that rations and forage for my command would be loaded into cars, and a cavalry escort to Alexandria to bring them up.

All hope of being able to maintain my position, whether victorious or not, vanished with that letter. My cavalry was utterly broken down by long service in the face of the enemy, and had as they were, could not be spared from the front, even if there had been time to go back thirty miles to Alexandria, and await the loading of the trains. At the time this letter was written Alexandria was swarming with troops, and my whole army interposed between that place and the enemy. I at once understood that we must, if possible, finish what we had to do that day, as night must see us behind Bull Run, if we wished to save men and animals.

THE BARRIERS OF SLAVERY.—As good an authority as "Perley" writes to Saturday's Journal:

A private of Col. Webster's regiment, who was with his commander when he breathed his last, says that before he was dead one of the rebels had stripped off his boots, which were sold by the thief for twenty dollars. Who would have dreamed when the expounder of the Constitution rendered himself unpopular at his northern home by insisting that the rights of the South should be respected, that in a few years his son would find in defending the Constitution against the attacks of the South and that his body would be restrained from pillaging by the presence of the Angel of Death?

General Jesse L. Reno, killed at the battle near Hagerstown, Md., on Sunday, was a native of Virginia, and graduated at West Point, July 1, 1846. For eminent services in the Mexican war he was appointed brevet, captain, Sept. 13th, 1847. He was a brigadier general under Burnside in his North Carolina campaign, where he proved himself to be a brave and able general. At the time of his death he was commanding the troops detached from North Carolina and others from Port Royal. He makes the fifth federal general killed within a month. General Reno was appointed brigadier general Nov. 12th, 1861. He was at one time professor at West Point, and afterwards chief officer of ordnance in the Utah expedition. He was appointed to the army from Pennsylvania.
